Malaysia: - Malaysia a superb place to travel in Asia for an eco-holiday. It is one of the gems of a travel in Asia. The relaxed and friendly attitude of its citizens as well as the gorgeous surrounding makes this one of Asia's most lovely vacation spot. Malaysia has a range of tourist attraction. The sheer diversity of tourism destination is astounding. These include the high tech city of Kuala Lumpur, tropical island of Langhawi, colonial hill stations of Genting and Cameron highlands, numerous pristine beaches, National parks and the world's oldest tropical rainforests. Skyscrapers tower above longhouse throughout highlights the bend of history and modern commerce. Natural wonders greet travellers as the leave urban areas. Another popular Malaysia city is Johar Bahru, a metropolis full of historical sites and the unique music scene, a special type of instrumental performance for wedding and other special events. Malaysia travel can include a stroll on the Tanjung Rhu beach, visit Kuala Terenggu for some central market shopping, or a visit to one of the many historic temples such as Jalan Tokang in Malacca. It truly lives up to its tag line of Malaysia truly Asia.

Climate: - The weather of Malaysia benefits from a tropical climate with high temperature and high humidity throughout the year. Daytime temperatures rises above 30 degree Celsius-round and night time temperature is rarely below 20 degree Celsius. On the west coast, the wettest months are May to October, while on the east coast; the wettest months are September- December. Kuala Lumpur is wettest from March to April and September to November, while Malaysian Borneo sees its heaviest rainfall between November and February. The best time to visit for dry weather is June and July on the east coast, January and February on the west coast, April I Sabah and June to July in Sarawah. The best time for beach holidays or scuba diving will depend on which part of Malaysia you intend to visit. The country is affected by the south-west monsoon from May to September and the north-west monsoon from November to March, and different parts of the country have their dry and wet season at different times of a year.

Genting highlands:- At the highlands of 2000 meter above the sea level, Genting highlands is the most prestige hill resort nestled on a mountain peak of Malaysia. It is very popular with visitors from all over the world. This highland is just 45 minutes drive from Kuala Lumpur city. There are a lot of things in Genting highlands; dining at the Genting theater restaurant, boating and the thrilling rides at the amusement park. The resort offers accommodation to suit every budget and taste. Overall Genting highlands are an integrated resort development that compromises hotels, casinos and a theme park in Pahang. This highland has remained the only legal gambling outfit in Malaysia, riddled at some sections with Kitschy architecture, bright lights and squawking tourists. A fantasy land of wild and thrilling adventure awaits the bold at both the indoor and outdoor theme park.

Climate:- Genting highlands has a cooling climate between 20-25 degree Celsius during day and 15- 20 degree Celsius during the night. We can visit Genting highland anytime as the roads are made up of sturdy construction that resist most landslides as the misty weather can be the reason for thunderstorm which are frequent towards the year end. For a dry holiday, the best time would be between march- September where rainfall is the least.
